Reference letter for Corin Rose

I met Corin when presenting Cybersecurity at the Maine School of Math and Science, was impressed with his interest and relevance of questions, and decided to offer an internship opportunity despite the travel distance from his home to our offices in Lewiston.

Aizoon is a young company with only two people in the office, and we are very dynamic in our effort to grow market penetration in the field of IT and especially OT (operational technology) consulting, where cybersecurity is most important. This means Corin was thrown in the deep end, tasked with understanding and documenting the cyber risk of a nano-sized brewery equipment we developed for testing and demo purposes.

I am very happy to report that despite the young age Corin has shown maturity beyond expectations, ability to navigate through a large amount of information quickly (NIST, SEA and other standards on cybersecurity), and importantly a very good analytic approach that enabled him to understand the critical parts of the test equipment. He has learned to ask for help and this skill will be useful in college.

In conclusion, I feel Corin has the features of a future brilliant engineer, and sincerely hope that for other internship programs, or when he finally graduates, he will like to consider us again for his employment opportunities.

Do not hesitate to contact me for more information.
